Share Radio wins COLWMA award for Educational Initiative

At the City of London Wealth Management Awards (COLWMA) dinner on Tuesday 12th April Gavin Oldham, Founder and Managing Director of Share Radio, was delighted to receive the Award for Educational Initiative in recognition of the Launch of Share Radio. Many of those attending spoke warmly of their experience of the new national station, both as listeners and guests.

The award relates directly to the values and objectives for which Share Radio was established, and Gavin Oldham commented: "We are particularly pleased to be honoured with this award which reflects the extent to which Share Radio unravels the complex world of money and investments. Whether in our regular content and programmes, such as the Investment Trust show (sponsored by Henderson Global Investors), or via our jargon-busting spotlights (some of which are sponsored by the London Stock Exchange), or via our 'Managing My Money' course broadcast in partnership with the Open University, Share Radio is gradually meeting its objective of helping people to be more confident with money matters."

The COLWMA dinner is a highlight event in the investment world calendar, and this year was held at the Guildhall.
