

Linda Lewis

Linda Lewis is the Presenter/Producer of our weekly documentary series 'Company Casebook'. Casebook is our on the ground look inside businesses large and small from a people perspective.

Linda is a bit of a star, having spent 20 years with the BBC as a reporter and presenter.

She is a former presenter of Radio 4's PM programme and You and Yours and has worked on business programmes for international broadcasters in Switzerland and Japan. She has plenty experience of business herself, having run her own multimedia content production company. She combines broadcasting and writing with teaching journalism - she is a senior media lecturer at Goldsmiths, University of London and particularly enjoys business and finance as a specialism.

"Having taken time out of my media career to run a small business myself I have huge admiration for anyone involved in setting up or managing a business, big or small" explained Linda. "Ultimately I realised I was better suited to reporting on business than being in business but the experience was invaluable. I particularly like digging out the human stories behind the business numbers, which is what Share Radio is allowing me to do, by getting out and about, hearing first hand what companies do and how they do it."
